They consider all those who have been taken by the enemy as killed. They carry out of the battle their wounded comrades on their shoulders. Arms, a small loaf of brend, a cheese, some garlic, a little brandy, an old garment, and two pair of sandals made of raw hide, form all the equipage of the Montenegrine. On their merch they do not seek any shelter from rain or cold. In rainy weather the Montanegrin wraps around his head the stroctea (a shawl of course cloth), lies down on the ground, and, putting his rifle under him, sleeps very comfortably. Three or four hours of repose are quite sufficient for his rest, and the remainder of his time is occupied in constant exertion. It is impossible to retain them in the reserve, and it seems that they cannot calmly bear the view of the enemy. The tactics of the Mon-tenegrins are confined to being skilled marks-CHINA COAST METEOROLOGICAL men. A stone, a hole, a tree, offer them a cover from the enemy. Piring usually in a prostrate position on the ground, they are not easily hit, whilst their rapid and sure shots carry destruction into the closed ranks of a regular army. imperial quarto. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. in Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong,

MOR comprehensiveness and practical service I this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous obects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exerdiges for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are ARGYLL, Brit, str., Scott. Jardine, Matheson given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typo. AURORA AUSTRALIS, Swedish sch., Sjogreen.graphy displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond BENEFACTOR, Am. bk., Hayden. - Russell & Co. in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast CALABAR, Brit. str., Hutchison. Landstein soonomy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant apposes which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the Dhalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Mcdhurst's English FYEN, Danish str., Torm - Win. Pustau & Co. and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst GLOUCESTER, British bark, Vincent .- Rozario this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applientions and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub. Jaddan, Brit. str., Clark. - Chinese. For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference KATH-WATERS, Brit, bk., Fowles, -Order, to its pages enables a person who under MECCA, Brit, str., Johnson. - Hop. Kee & Co. stands English to communicate effectively NANKIN, British str., Brace.—Siemesen & Co. with natives who understand nothing but Chi. NORDEN, Dan. etc., Jensen.—Jurdine, Mathenese. Christian bells!

What a world of consolation in their utterances dwells

When "the stone was rolled away

There He burst the bonds of death .

From the sepulchro' where lay right hand of God it. There in One-

Where He maketh intercession

For our manifold transcression.

Now the bells are loudly calling, bidding every one

We may offer praise and prayer:

Their receiverating echoes, through the circums ablent air

They are calling, calling, calling,

And in tones that are appulling -

To the scorners, condemnation,

still the bells are tolling, tolling;

And their echoing notes are rolling

Over vale and plain and mountain,

Now their tones grow loader, deeper;

They might wake the dullost sleener

Yath their word of solerna warming

"Time! time! time!

Time! time! time!'

" Time !

Time! time! time!

Time! time! time!

On this peaceful Sabbath morning

Till the ending of the hour ends the chime.

To the rolling and the tolling of the belis!

Thus each awinging Than kneels,

From the tower wherein he dwells

His fine monosyllable of "Time,"

Whose cadences fautostically rhyme

Calling all men to the fountain,

Whence life and joy and peace are flowing evermore,

Evermore!.

To the sanctuary, where

Are rolling, rolling, rolling.

In tones that are consoling,

To believers, consolution:

interesting on that account, but involves a mode of investigation altogether different. I shall not shrink from the discussion, although Mr. Hind has changed the venue "Moas were not extinct in the twelfth contury. The Maories found the mon there when they landed in New Zealand, which, according to the best traditions, was inthe twelfth century. The Maories of this day describe them as a heavy, stupid bird, which their forefathers killed and ate. as the ensiest mode of obtaining a livelihood." Thus Mr. Hind. Now, I doubt whether either of these statements is in exact accordance with fact. or whether these dates can be even approximately fixed. My own belief as regards the extinction of the mon is that we have no written or printed evidence whatever, that wo have no traditional evidence of the slightest value, and that the descriptions of the Maories of the present day are equally worthless; further, that all geological and positive evidence -the evidence to be obtained from the numberless fragments which have been exhumed, of policy. examined, named, labeled, described, and deposited for the instruction of the scientific inquirer in various museums both in New Zealand and Great Britain-points with marvellous accordance to a conclusion directly opposite, namely, that the moa had been exterminated theusands of years before history, tradition, even conjecture had shadowed forth its existence on the earth. the Current Local Rates of Premia will be at-I once thought otherwise, and possibly may lowed upon Insurances effected with this Office. have written otherwise; but one cannot resist the facts adduced by Dr. Haast from his investigations, most laboriously conducted on the spot, with the single object of discovering PHE SECOND COLONIAL SEA AND and disclosing the exact truth. Moa-bone Point was the principal site of the doctor's laborious exertions, which appear to have been particularly complete and exhaustive, in a word most convincing. They were conducted in the year 1872, and are published in the Zoologist for 1875. From those it appears that he discovered and examined three hundred and forty bones, or fragments of divided as to whether stimulants are to be bone; that one hundred and forty were those properly classed as foods or not. As yet, the food value not identified, and about one hundred and of alcoholic fluids is by no means exhaustively | thirty were bones of sucklers. After a most determined, and although we incline to the careful and puinst king examination of opinion that the important part played by all these, he infers "that an enormous space alcoholic fluids in the process of nutrition of time must have elapsed since the Denormis must be sooner or later generally admitted, became extinct." And again besays:--"These still the food value attributed to the so-called gigantic birds were exterminated at a period non-alcoholic stimulants, tea, coffee, and when the physical features of this part of cocca, has been frequently over-rated.
